■ Market commentary

April's headline returns told a deceptively calm story – US equities fell -0.7%, global developed equities and emerging market equities returned 0.9% and 1.3% respectively, and global government bonds rose by 3.3% – yet behind the scenes, markets endured sharp swings. Gold returned 5.3%, and the US dollar fell another 4.5%, taking its year-to-date decline to -8.3%. Intra-month, equity markets and gold swung by around 13%, while long-dated US Treasury yields moved in a 50bps range. Volatility spiked as chaotic US policymaking drove daily turbulence.

The catalyst was "Liberation Day" on 2nd April, when President Trump announced sweeping reciprocal tariffs and threatened to remove Fed Chair Powell, unsettling global markets. Investors sold off equities and fled to gold, but not to the usual safe havens – US Treasuries and the dollar both weakened, raising questions about US exceptionalism. With fears of a recession rising and confidence deteriorating, Trump reversed course: he affirmed central bank independence and paused tariff escalation, setting a 90-day negotiation window.

Equity markets duly recovered, credit spreads narrowed, and bond yields fell. However, the damage to sentiment lingered. Key concerns include the economic impact of tariffs, shaken confidence in US policymaking, and the cost of strategic goals like decoupling from China and reshoring supply chains. Inflationary pressures from tariffs – combined with a slowing US economy – raise the risk of stagflation. While markets are pricing in four rate cuts by year-end, the Fed may be more cautious, especially as hard data like employment and spending remain firm.

Globally, risks are skewed toward slower growth. China's excess production may create deflationary spillovers, prompting looser policy elsewhere. The exception is Japan, where gradual tightening is expected.

US assets underperformed. The S&P 500 fell -0.7% in April, while MSCI World ex-US gained 4% in USD terms. The year-to-date gap is now 15%, wiping out the US's relative gains over the past year. Flows have shifted toward non-US markets, amid concerns that US corporates may be early casualties of the trade conflict.

While near-term risks remain, we see potential upside. Tax cuts, falling energy prices, AI-driven productivity gains, and eventual tariff resolutions may support growth. Volatility has highlighted the value of diversification across and within asset classes. We remain cautiously constructive and will seek opportunities to add risk as conditions evolve.

Returns before this date are back tested using the portfolio's fund holdings and published returns for these as at the date of launch date, which would not reflect Equilibrium's historic asset allocation views, or any changes, which would have been made to the portfolio's holdings over time. From the launch date, returns are based on the published returns for the portfolio's fund holdings and any changes which are made to these. All returns are calculated on a total return basis after the deduction of all fees. Returns for periods exceeding one year are annualised. All returns are quoted in US dollars, unless otherwise stated. Total investment charges (TIC) are the sum of a fund's total expense ratio (TER) and the transaction costs (TC). The portfolio's asset allocation is based on the weighted average of the underlying funds in which the portfolio invests using the latest available data. The portfolio's asset allocation may differ from time to time due to market movements, changes to the portfolio and the underlying fund data and limitations. The underlying funds will contain exposure to assets that are invested globally, which may present additional risks. The value of an investor's investment and the income arising from it will therefore be subject to exchange rate fluctuations. Foreign securities may have additional material risks, depending on the specific risks affecting that country, such as: potential constraints on liquidity and the repatriation of funds; macroeconomic risks; political risks; foreign exchange risks; tax risks; settlement risks; and potential limitations on the availability of market information. The portfolio may also invest in funds which do not permit daily dealing. Investments in such funds will only be realisable on their dealing days. It is not possible to assess the proper market price of these investments, other than on the fund's dealing days. Higher risk investments may be subject to sudden and larger falls in value in comparison to other investments. Higher risk investments include, but are not limited to, investments in smaller companies (even in developed markets), investments in emerging markets or single country debt or equity funds and investments in high yield or non-investment grade debt. Individual investor returns may differ as a result of platform and adviser fees, the actual investment date, cash flows and other transactions.
