■ Market commentary

Markets closed out a strong quarter, with further gains in June. Global equities rose 4.3% during the month, taking the Q2 return to 11.5% in USD terms. US markets led the charge, with the S&P 500 and Nasdaq both hitting fresh all-time highs, buoyed by the continued outperformance of megacap tech stocks – particularly Nvidia, which recovered sharply from its early April low to reclaim the top spot as the world's largest company by market cap.

The major driver of returns remained the sharp and sustained weakness in the US dollar, which fell by 7% on a trade-weighted basis in Q2 and is down by 10.7% year-to-date. Emerging markets returned 6.0% in June and 12.0% in Q2, although China was a notable laggard (3.7% in June and 2.0% in Q2), with its economy continuing to struggle and more exposed to US tariffs than most.

Bonds appeared to have had an uneventful quarter, with US Treasuries returning 0.8% in Q2 and 1.2% in June while global government bonds returned 4.1% in Q2 and 1.7% in June, but this masked significant volatility.

As signs emerged of weakening in the key US consumer sector, expectations of accelerated rate cuts by the Fed began to be priced into markets, despite the Fed itself remaining cautious on the pace of cuts. The housing market also struggled under the weight of high mortgage rates, with the NAHB index falling to a near three-year low. Investors increasingly expect a more dovish path for interest rates, even as the Fed's 'dot plot' suggests a slower approach. While the Fed held rates steady at its June meeting, markets are now expecting multiple cuts before year-end.

Geopolitical risks stayed elevated, though the immediate threat of escalation in the Middle East eased following a truce between Israel and Iran. This was reflected in oil prices, which reversed earlier gains as tensions cooled.

Uncertainty, combined with the strong run in markets, suggests some consolidation is due, and a degree of caution is called for in the near term. However, tariff issues appear to be heading towards resolution, and the long-term fundamentals remain supportive. The prospect of rate cuts, resilient corporate balance sheets and the ongoing AI-driven productivity boom should help underpin markets in the months ahead. Diversification remains key and volatility is likely to bring opportunity.

The launch date is the start date of the portfolio. Returns before this date are back tested using the portfolio's fund holdings and published returns for these as at the date of launch date, which would not reflect Equilibrium's historic asset allocation views, or any changes, which would have been made to the portfolio's holdings over time. From the launch date, returns are based on the published returns for the portfolio's fund holdings and any changes which are made to these. All returns are calculated on a total return basis after the deduction of all fees. Returns for periods exceeding one year are annualised. All returns are quoted in US dollars, unless otherwise stated. Total investment charges (TIC) are the sum of a fund's total expense ratio (TER) and the transaction costs (TC). The portfolio's TIC is an estimated total for the portfolio based on the weighted average of the underlying funds in which the portfolio invests using the latest available data. If a TIC is not available, we may use the TER, which is the TIC excluding transaction costs. Where neither a TIC nor a TER is available, we may use the investment manager's ongoing fee.

The portfolio's asset allocation is based on the weighted average of the underlying funds in which the portfolio invests using the latest available data. The portfolio's asset allocation may differ from time to time due to market movements, changes to the portfolio and the underlying fund data and limitations. The underlying funds will contain exposure to assets that are invested globally, which may present additional risks. The value of an investor's investment and the income arising from it will therefore be subject to exchange rate fluctuations. Foreign securities may have additional material risks, depending on the specific risks affecting that country, such as: potential constraints on liquidity and the repatriation of funds; macroeconomic risks; political risks; foreign exchange risks; tax risks; settlement risks; and potential limitations on the availability of market information. The portfolio may also invest in funds which do not permit daily dealing. Investments in such funds will only be realisable on their dealing days. It is not possible to assess the proper market price of these investments, other than on the fund's dealing days. Higher risk investments may be subject to sudden and larger falls in value in comparison to other investments. Higher risk investments include, but are not limited to, investments in smaller companies (even in developed markets), investments in emerging markets or single country debt or equity funds and investments in high yield or non-investment grade debt. Individual investor returns may differ as a result of platform and adviser fees, the actual investment date, cash flows and other transactions.
