■ Market commentary

Global markets extended their Q3 rally in September, supported by resilient economic data, dovish central bank signals, and continued strength in AI-related sectors. Global equities returned 3.2% for the month, led by US megacap tech stocks, with the S&P 500 up 3.6% and the Magnificent Seven gaining 6.8%. Japan and China also posted strong gains, with the Topix up 3% and MSCI China rising 9.8%, driven by stimulus measures and surging AI revenues—Alibaba and Tencent rose 29.1% and 9.6% respectively.

This month, technology stocks remained the standout performers. Nvidia gained 7.1%, buoyed by a $100bn deal with OpenAI and a $5bn investment in Intel. Apple rose 9.7% on tariff exemptions tied to its $100bn US investment, while Alphabet surged 14.2% following a favourable antitrust ruling. Tesla climbed 33.2% after Elon Musk's $1bn stock purchase. These four stocks alone accounted for over half of the S&P 500's quarterly return.

The Fed cut rates by 25bps in September, its first move since December 2024, and signalled further easing. The FOMC dot plot suggests an additional 50bps of cuts by year-end and 25bps more in 2026. Inflation data came in at or below expectations, easing concerns about tariffs, while the 10-year breakeven rate rose modestly to 2.37%. US Treasuries returned 0.9% over the month.

Gold surged 11.9% in September, reaching new all-time highs, driven by safe-haven demand amid geopolitical tensions and debt concerns. The US dollar stabilised, and Brent crude fell to $64, down from $83 in January, helping contain inflation and support disposable incomes.

Fiscal concerns resurfaced globally. In the US, heavy debt issuance steepened the yield curve, while Fed independence came under scrutiny. In Europe, France's political instability and rising deficits pushed its bond yields above those of the PIIGS (Portugal, Italy, Ireland, Greece, Spain). Finally, UK gilts rose 0.7% as 10-year yields rose to 4.69%. The BoE cut rates again but maintained a hawkish tone with inflation near 4%.

While valuations are elevated and risks remain, including those related to tariffs, debt sustainability, and geopolitical tensions, AI-driven investment and supportive financial conditions continue to offer a constructive outlook over the medium term. A period of consolidation may be approaching, but we remain cautiously optimistic and continue to look for opportunities to increase risk exposure in a measured and selective manner.

The launch date is the start date of the portfolio. Returns before this date are back tested using the portfolio's fund holdings and published returns for these as at the date of launch date, which would not reflect Equilibrium's historic asset allocation views, or any changes, which would have been made to the portfolio's holdings over time. From the launch date, returns are based on the published returns for the portfolio's fund holdings and any changes which are made to these. All returns are calculated on a total return basis after the deduction of all fees. Returns for periods exceeding one year are annualised. All returns are quoted in US dollars, unless otherwise stated. Total investment charges (TIC) are the sum of a fund's total expense ratio (TER) and the transaction costs (TC). The portfolio's TIC is an estimated total for the portfolio based on the weighted average of the underlying funds in which the portfolio invests using the latest available data. If a TIC is not available, we may use the TER, which is the TIC excluding transaction costs. Where neither a TIC nor a TER is available, we may use the investment manager's ongoing fee.

The portfolio's asset allocation is based on the weighted average of the underlying funds in which the portfolio invests using the latest available data. The portfolio's asset allocation may differ from time to time due to market movements, changes to the portfolio and the underlying fund data and limitations. The underlying funds will contain exposure to assets that are invested globally, which may present additional risks. The value of an investor's investment and the income arising from it will therefore be subject to exchange rate fluctuations. Foreign securities may have additional material risks, depending on the specific risks affecting that country, such as: potential constraints on liquidity and the repatriation of funds; macroeconomic risks; political risks; foreign exchange risks; tax risks; settlement risks; and potential limitations on the availability of market information. The portfolio may also invest in funds which do not permit daily dealing. Investments in such funds will only be realisable on their dealing days. It is not possible to assess the proper market price of these investments, other than on the fund's dealing days. Higher risk investments may be subject to sudden and larger falls in value in comparison to other investments. Higher risk investments include, but are not limited to, investments in smaller companies (even in developed markets), investments in emerging markets or single country debt or equity funds and investments in high yield or non-investment grade debt. Individual investor returns may differ as a result of platform and adviser fees, the actual investment date, cash flows and other transactions.
