Market commentary

Global markets delivered strong but narrow gains in 2025, punctuated by sharp bouts of volatility. The S&P 500 rose 17.4% for the year despite an early "Liberation Day" tariff shock that triggered one of the sharpest two-day drops on record and left the index down >15% from January highs. The three-year cumulative US equity return reached 82%, but breadth stayed thin: only 30% of S&P 500 constituents outperformed, with Nvidia (+39%) and Alphabet (+65%) contributing ~30% of the index's gain. Notably, returns were earnings-led (US EPS +13.5%) with only modest multiple expansion (+2.5%), reversing the pattern of 2023–24.

Outside the US, performance was stronger: MSCI World ex-US returned 31.8% as US exceptionalism was questioned and the trade-weighted dollar fell 9.5%. Further dollar weakness is likely as rate differentials narrow, and USD hedging costs decline.

Communication Services (+31%) and IT (+23%) led MSCI World sectors alongside Financials (+26%) on easier conditions, while Consumer Staples (+6%) and Discretionary (+7%) reflected subdued broad-based spending. Gold surged 61.5% on dollar weakness and macro hedging demand. Bond markets were broadly supportive: US Treasuries returned +6.2%; high grade and high yield outperformed on carry; and emerging-market hard-currency debt was the standout at +12.4% as the dollar softened and tariff fears ebbed.

With US financial conditions easing, the effects of earlier global loosening filtering through, and targeted fiscal support in train, the backdrop for growth is improving. Stronger investment, particularly in AI infrastructure alongside cyclical sectors, should offset softer labour markets and weaker consumption, resulting in a modest strengthening in activity. Volatility is inevitable given fiscal/debt constraints, stretched AI valuations and market concentration, and questions around the sustainability and monetisation of AI capex. We remain cautiously optimistic: stay invested, emphasise broad diversification across asset classes, regions and styles, and maintain tactical agility to add risk selectively during pullbacks.

The launch date is the start date of the portfolio. Returns before this date are back tested using the portfolio's fund holdings and published returns for these as at the date of launch date, which would not reflect Equilibrium's historic asset allocation views, or any changes, which would have been made to the portfolio's holdings over time. From the launch date, returns are based on the published returns for the portfolio's fund holdings and any changes which are made to these. All returns are calculated on a total return basis after the deduction of all fees. Returns for periods exceeding one year are annualised. All returns are quoted in US dollars, unless otherwise stated. Total investment charges (TIC) are the sum of a fund's total expense ratio (TER) and the transaction costs (TC). The portfolio's TIC is an estimated total for the portfolio based on the weighted average of the underlying funds in which the portfolio invests using the latest available data. If a TIC is not available, we may use the TER, which is the TIC excluding transaction costs. Where neither a TIC nor a TER is available, we may use the investment manager's ongoing fee.

The portfolio's asset allocation is based on the weighted average of the underlying funds in which the portfolio invests using the latest available data. The portfolio's asset allocation may differ from time to time due to market movements, changes to the portfolio and the underlying fund data and limitations. The underlying funds will contain exposure to assets that are invested globally, which may present additional risks. The value of an investor's investment and the income arising from it will therefore be subject to exchange rate fluctuations. Foreign securities may have additional material risks, depending on the specific risks affecting that country, such as: potential constraints on liquidity and the repatriation of funds; macroeconomic risks; political risks; foreign exchange risks; tax risks; settlement risks; and potential limitations on the availability of market information. The portfolio may also invest in funds which do not permit daily dealing. Investments in such funds will only be realisable on their dealing days. It is not possible to assess the proper market price of these investments, other than on the fund's dealing days. Higher risk investments may be subject to sudden and larger falls in value in comparison to other investments. Higher risk investments include, but are not limited to, investments in smaller companies (even in developed markets), investments in emerging markets or single country debt or equity funds and investments in high yield or non-investment grade debt. Individual investor returns may differ as a result of platform and adviser fees, the actual investment date, cash flows and other transactions.
